THE FLORIDA ORANGE CROP.

F. W. Stanton, Philadelphia, Sums Up the Situation.

Frank W. Stanton, one of the orange operators in the city, returned a few days ago from Florida and gives his opinion of the orange crop in the following interview: "From a general outlook in the sections where I operated last year I would say there is no larger crop than last season. The Orlando section will be light, having possibly 30 per cent of the 1905 supply. From St. Petersburg to Tarpon, it is variously estimated that the crop has increased 10 to 50 per cent. A conservative estimate, I should think, would be 25 per cent. So far there has been shipped from the state about 25 per cent more than for the same period in 1905, but at present everybody is handicapped for labor, cars and material. Labor is particularly short and much higher than in former years when packers were paid by the day and expected to pack so many boxes. Practically all packers are now paid by the box, at the rate of 50 and good men are scarce.

THE NEWSOME FURNITURE STORE
H. W. MICHAEL, Manager

Orange Thieves.

During Monday night of last week some miscreant took an irresistible fancy to the oranges upon a young tree growing near the creek on Merrill Plantation, north of town, and stripped it completely. The tree bore about a box of fruit which was just beginning to color nicely and was a source of considerable pride to Mr. Will, who has the place in charge. No definite information as to the identity of the marauder is recorded, but Mr. Sager Hill has his suspicions, and promises that there'll "be some doin'" in that neck o' the woods if further trespassing is attempted.
